A significant shift: acting earlier, driving greater impact and reaching more people

2025 was a year that brought significant changes to the Quebec healthcare system.

The network's reorganization and the concerns of patients, caregivers and workers regarding access to care and services significantly transformed the environment. This changing landscape prompted the Quebec Cancer Foundation to make a conscious choice to listen, to adapt and to take action.

In light of these major changes, not only did we strengthen our presence and impact, but we also chose to take on a pivotal, unifying and decisive role. A role that we will fulfill with the same conviction that has served us well over the years.

Key initiatives driving change

Significant progress was made in many areas thanks to the mobilization of our entire community, most notably:

- The opening of a 7th Lodge, la Maison Moreau, in Abitibi-Témiscamingue, la Maison Moreau, which offers essential local services to people who live far from major centers.
- Over $320,000 in assistance provided directly to families thanks to the Support program for daily activities (PAVQ) and the services of 115 trained hospital workers throughout Quebec. The repercussions are sustained, with $730,000 in assistance provided and 533 professionals trained since 2022.
- Awareness-raising campaigns on multiple platforms, including La Roue de l'infortune, (the wheel of misfortune – available in French only), which struck a chord with the population and elicited a collective awareness and reflection on the truth of cancer and the topic of prevention.
- A unique platform featuring a series of clear, practical and accessible educational videos designed to help people better understand the cancer journey as well as the accompanying issues and treatments:

General Manager

Supported by a sustained growth and a profound organizational transformation, the Foundation strengthened its position as an essential strategic partner in oncology, bringing people together and driving meaningful action across Quebec.

We continued the strategic shift launched in 2024 by acting earlier, driving greater impact and reaching more people, with a mission focused on prevention, support and action. This orientation is aligned with the province's major priorities in terms of decreasing the burden of avoidable diseases and battling socioeconomic health disparities.

"We don't see this leadership as constituting a position to occupy but rather, as a responsibility to serve the common good. The Quebec Cancer Foundation has opted to join forces with organizations in the field of oncology, to listen to the people working directly with people impacted by cancer, and to act with bravery and benevolence. Every small step in terms of prevention, support or access is the result of a shared commitment," stated Geneviève Giguère, Chair of the Quebec Cancer Foundation's Board of Directors.

Prevent. Support. Take action in the face of cancer.

Prevent means choosing to act early, with a focus on the daily factors impacting the health of Quebecers. By concentrating on reliable and accessible information while also promoting healthy lifestyle habits and cancer screening, the Foundation has become a collective force that helps decrease the number of avoidable cancer cases and sustainably improve population health.

Support involves understanding that behind each cancer diagnosis, there lies a story, a family and a community. In 2025, the perseverance of our teams and the strength of our partnerships allowed the Foundation to enhance its accommodation services, psychological support, information and financial assistance it offers. The Foundation helps bridge the gaps when the healthcare system reaches its limits, resolute in its belief that no one with cancer or looking for information or resources should ever feel that they are alone.

Take action, in turn, consists of transforming cancer prevention, support and advocacy into a vast social undertaking. It's also about establishing conditions that favour an ongoing conversation between the people impacted, healthcare workers, decision-makers and the population as a whole. The Foundation accomplishes this by:

- advocating on behalf of the people impacted by cancer to decision-makers and influential bodies;
- raising awareness across communities on issues regarding prevention, screening and access;
- working with the entire health ecosystem (institutions, community organisations, healthcare workers and decision-makers);
- turning the issues around cancer into concrete actions that truly improve the life of Quebecers.

"Day after day, we act where needs are greatest: earlier, with greater impact and closer to people. We are helping build a society where addressing cancer means not only providing treatment, but also preventing the disease, supporting people and improving health for generations to come." stated Marco Décelles, General Manager of the Quebec Cancer Foundation

This significant shift heralds a new phase in our collective commitment. Together, we will continue acting earlier, driving greater impact and reaching more people, as we build a healthier future for ever Quebecers.

Behind the reality of cancer

Cancer is not just a personal hardship; it also reveals something important about our society. While it showcases our solidarity, it also reveals the gaps in our collective choices with regard to prevention, screening, and access to care and support across Quebec.

Data that call us to act

Nearly 70,000 Quebecers received a cancer diagnosis in 2025; this is equal to one new case every 8 minutes.

A growing number of these new cases consist of young Quebecers between the ages of 20 and 49, in the prime of their life. Cancer incidence rates in people under 50 years of age have been increasing by approximately 2% per year, clearly illustrating that the pressures on our health system will multiply over the coming years.

Quebec has the highest cancer incidence rate in all of Canada. These figures, moreover, are not mere statistics: they are a call to action.

A visible reality that we can no longer ignore

Behind these figures are human realities that often go unseen. They include:

- delays in diagnosis and access to treatment;
- significant differences in care and services, depending on postal code; the financial situation or ability to travel of people facing cancer;
- the loneliness felt by people who must leave all that is familiar to them in order to undergo treatment;
- the exhaustion felt by caregivers, family members, friends, communities and work environments that must compensate for the system's deficiencies;
- the psychological, financial and social repercussions that persist long after therapy has ended.

Cancer cases are on the rise, especially among people between 20 and 49 years of age.

+ 79% ↑
cancer cases among people under 50 years of age from 1990 to 2019, in over 200 countries

+ 12.5% ↑
breast cancer cases among Canadian women in their thirties from 1984 to 2019

190
new cancer diagnoses each day in Quebec

14
types of cancer increasingly diagnosed among youth

These often-overlooked realities are not solely the purview of people living with cancer and those close to them. They reveal collective choices: what we elect to prioritize, what we accept to postpone and what we choose to undertake as a shared responsibility.

The Quebec Cancer Foundation's role

Faced with this reality, the Foundation has become a driving force that helps reduce the isolation, the inequity and the distress people with cancer experience every day. As a result of our awareness-raising and mobilization efforts, as well as our complementary support, information and wellness services, we improve society's ability to confront cancer with both dignity and solidarity.

Solutions already exist

The challenge is not a lack of solutions or innovation. Rather, it is the need for sustained political commitment to recognize these solutions, to support them over the long term and to make them a priority.

To concretely progress, we must:

- invest in prevention and screening initiatives, both among the population and with healthcare professionals;
- re-examine and expand the existing inclusion criteria, and improve access to screening programs;
- introduce a structured colorectal cancer screening program for people between the ages of 45 and 74;
- acknowledge and support the essential role of caregivers;
- strengthen existing partnerships with community organizations that work closely with people facing cancer and their loved ones;
- listen to the people affected by cancer when planning services.

Simply attesting to the growing presence of cancer is not enough; we must recognize that meaningful progress requires addressing the medical, social and policy dimensions of cancer together.

The choice before us

Cancer shines a spotlight on what we are willing (or not) to do so that no one is forgotten or left behind. Society is at a crossroads: it can watch the number of cases keep growing ... or ... transform today's reality into meaningful change.

Prevent. Support. Take action in the face of cancer.

This is more than a tagline or a promise. It's a roadmap for collective action towards a healthier future.

Because certain things simply cannot wait

For us, cancer was not just a word in a campaign or a statistic we read about. It was something we became close and familiar with. Very close.

We were at my brother Jimmy's side throughout his cancer journey.

We were there as a family, united. Even his son, despite being very young, weathered this terrible storm with remarkable strength. We were there during the moments of fragile silence, waiting for each breath and hanging on to a thread of hope. We witnessed what the disease steals, but also what it can bring out, namely love, solidarity and strong bonds between people with cancer and their loved ones.

Going through such an ordeal leaves no one unscathed. We quickly learn that behind each cancer diagnosis there lies a family, friends and an entire community who must learn how to cope. And perhaps most importantly, we come face to face with a striking truth: cancer never touches just one individual.

This is why I decided to support the Quebec Cancer Foundation. Because support is a game-changer. Being supported, informed and surrounded makes the journey a little easier to bear. It brings a certain dignity, comfort and once in a while, a bit of light in the most difficult of times.

But if I'm speaking out today, it's also to address what can and must be done before cancer strikes.

Too often, we step up in the aftermath. After the diagnosis. After the shock. After the distress. And this, while so many things could have been done beforehand.

Listening to one's body, taking preventive measures and getting screened are all simple, yet powerful gestures. Gestures that can save lives. But too often, we put them off. We tell ourselves that they can wait. And yet, certain things cannot wait. Cancer won't wait, as the Foundation's campaign reminds us.

Acting early means giving yourself a chance. It is choosing yourself. It also means choosing those we love.

I will continue to speak on behalf of an organization that, in addition to providing human support and essential services to people with cancer and their loved ones, also chooses to invest in the future to help prevent diagnoses tomorrow. Thanks to this collective undertaking, thousands of people touched by cancer are supported, concrete gestures are made and structured actions are undertaken, and this throughout Quebec.

Together, we can improve how we prevent cancer, better support people and take concrete action against cancer, both individually and collectively.

For Jimmy. For all of the people touched by cancer. And for everyone that we can still protect.

Thank you for your support.

We think the system takes care of everything

I was 42 years old, at the pinnacle of my personal and professional lives. A sports nutritionist and project manager. Health was something I understood. And yet, I never saw cancer coming.

In the fall of 2024, doctors spoke of heartburn. They tweaked my meds. I was given a referral to undergo an upper-GI endoscopy... with a waiting period of one year. After weeks of medical uncertainty, my world crumbled in February 2025. One day, I could not stand up in the Metro. I was admitted to the hospital as a Priority 1 case and received my diagnosis a few hours later: lymphoma.

The system treats the disease, but not everything else that comes with it.

I quickly lost my autonomy. I was prescribed morphine, and sometimes needed a wheelchair to get around. Swallowing became a challenge. And then, I was asked to make a difficult choice: remain fertile or immediately start chemotherapy to treat my stage 3 diffuse large B-cell lymphoma. I was given this ultimatum on a Friday. Monday, I began undergoing treatments.

We think the system takes care of everything. This is false. Yes, chemotherapy can treat the disease. But who was supporting me (literally)? Who was helping me swallow when the pain became unbearable, manage the fatigue and cope with the loneliness? Who was answering my questions when the medical team was overwhelmed? Who was helping and caring for me on a daily basis? These are all things that the system fails to address. They become the patient's responsibility. And yet, this support is what makes the difference between "physically surviving" through treatments and "getting through the ordeal".

I quickly realized a painful truth that is often misunderstood: the system will treat a disease, but not everything else that allows patients to make their way through what follows. So I let my professional reflexes take over. I researched and informed myself further. I asked questions. I took notes. I prepared myself before every appointment. I examined my options. I surrounded myself with help and information and became a partner to my own health.

I notably built a team comprised of Info-cancer Services professionals from the Quebec Cancer Foundation.

Today, I am still rebuilding my life and my health, one day at time. I learned to ask for help, to surround myself with others and to make progress in a multitude of ways. I realized that the medical team was not responsible for overseeing everything associated with my cancer. My role, as a user and partner, was to make my needs known, ask questions, inform myself and surround myself with people who could help.

Because... while the system will treat the disease, the Foundation steps in to care for the individual.

“Cancer is not an individual journey, but a trajectory dotted with essential partners.”

Health services partners

Collaborating to promote wellness

With a view to better addressing the needs of Quebecers touched by cancer, the Quebec Cancer Foundation is continuing to form strong partnerships with health institutions and community organizations throughout the province. Such strategic alliances make it possible to improve access to support services and complementary therapies that are close by and reflect local realities.

An agreement was struck with the Centre de soutien de l'Estrie in Sherbrooke to provide soothing sessions promoting well-being and relaxation in conjunction with treatments. Fabrique Sainte-Rosalie, which offers art-therapy, massage therapy and wig services in Saint-Hyacinthe, is now offering foot care services. The Centre Mieux-être de Saint-Jean-sur-Richelieu, in turn, now offers acupuncture sessions, thereby growing the number of complementary services available to people with cancer.

In the Mauricie region, a partnership with Maison Main...Tenir L'Espoir de Trois-Rivières made it possible to provide decongestive therapy designed to improve the quality of life of people living with cancer. The grand opening in Rouyn-Noranda of Maison Moreau, our new Lodge in the Abitibi region that came to be thanks to a partnership with the Fondation Santé Rouyn-Noranda, means that local accommodations will now be available for people undergoing cancer treatments.

The Foundation also entered into a strategic partnership with Myeloma Canada to make it easier for people with multiple myeloma and their loved ones from everywhere in Quebec to access priceless information, support and resources.

These collaborative measures point to a clear belief. By uniting our expertise and local strengths, we can expand the scope of our services and tangibly improve the wellness of people affected by cancer.

In a welcoming setting, the attendees enjoyed a gourmet meal while listening to a memorable performance by Jeanick Fournier, winner of Canada's Got Talent 2022. The Foundation would like to acknowledge the stellar work of the organizing committee along with the incredible engagement of the community of Saint-Hyacinthe; their joint efforts will allow the Centre de services de Saint-Hyacinthe to offer even more resources and greater hope to people touched by cancer.

A team's strength extends beyond the field

A former star player with the Montreal Alouettes, Marc-Antoine Dequoy is admired for his charismatic and friendly personality, his ferocity, his discipline and his team spirit. In 2022, he decided to put his unique determination to work for a cause that was dear to him, namely the Quebec Cancer Foundation.

Having lost his mother to cancer, his commitment is a tribute but also an inspiring act of solidarity. He got involved with La marche as a tribute to his mother, on behalf of the families who go through the ordeal and to remind everyone that behind each cancer diagnosis there stands an entire community. He also wanted to ensure that no one felt as though they needed to face cancer alone.

Marc-Antoine Dequoy's contribution to this event is similar to what he brings to the field: gathering people together, touching them and lifting them up. His role as ambassador of La marche du Grand défolement's 8th edition brought a new energy, reminding everyone throughout Quebec that solidarity is a collective might with the ability to turn adversity into hope. His courage and generosity reminded us of a fundamental truth: "Cancer is a challenge that we can face (and address) together".

"Like in football, major obstacles are overcome as a team. La marche is one way of coming together to face cancer. On the field, as well as in life, we go further when we are united."

donors in 2025

In 2025, individuals, companies and foundations stepped up and made a true difference by opting for an ongoing donation to the Quebec Cancer Foundation. Whether it was through a major gift, a legacy or another type of planned giving, these donors helped ensure the continuity of our services. Each year, there are a growing number of people who want to make a concrete difference and bring hope to people facing cancer. Their commitment persists over time, by ensuring that future generations will be able to count on caring, accessible and critical support.

We are also thrilled to take part in Will Power, an initiative that explains and demystifies planned giving, be it carried out by someone still alive or as part of a legacy. Together, we are fostering a culture of deliberate generosity for the future. These contributions constitute an engagement to promoting the dignity, wellness and equity of all people affected by cancer.

Thank you to each and every one of our donors for their trust and generosity.

monthly donors in support of the Backup Force

In 2025, thousands of people showed their support for the Backup Force by committing to a monthly donation. A simple gesture with a major impact. This loyalty from donors allows the Quebec Cancer Foundation to enjoy a welcome stability. Through their ongoing commitment, these donors provide the Fondation québécoise du cancer with invaluable stability. This support allows us to plan upcoming activities with confidence, optimize our resources and limit our administrative expenses, all while reducing our environmental footprint. In addition to the much-appreciated monetary amounts, the consistency of monthly donations also makes a significant difference. Month after month, these stalwart allies help support the thousands of people impacted by cancer.

Their recurring generosity is a silent but essential force.

Thank you to all of those who supported us in this manner.

“Monthly giving is my way of standing beside everyone facing cancer. Knowing my support changes lives, month after month, means everything to me.”

Kim, donor

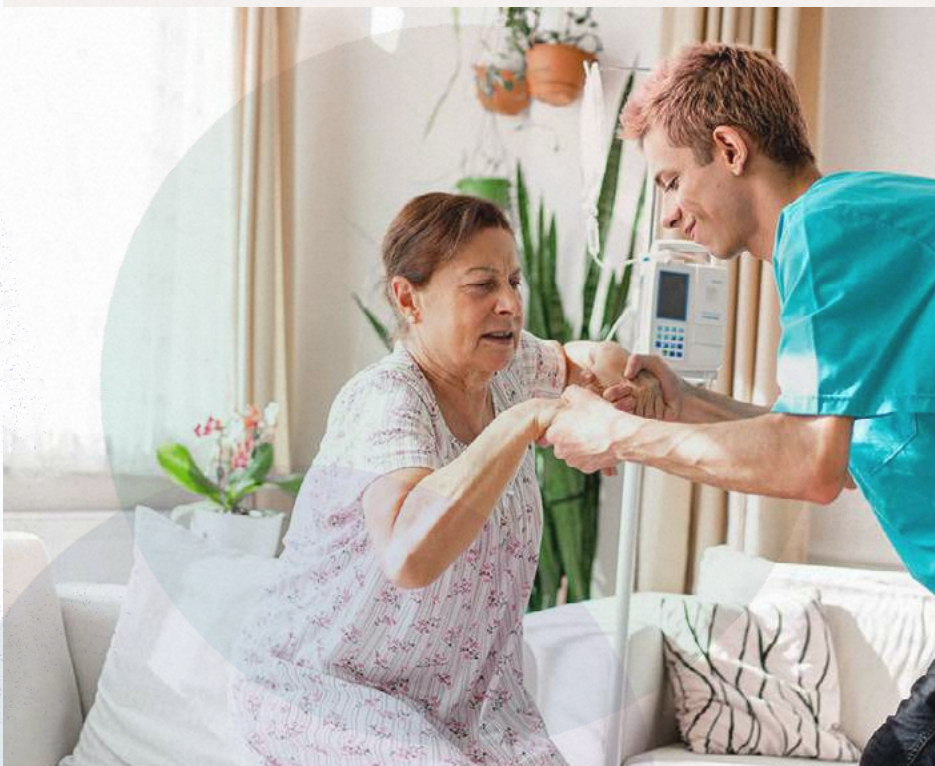

The needs aren't slowing down. Neither are we.

Since its founding, the Quebec Cancer Foundation has embraced a dual responsibility that remains at the heart of its mission: providing direct support to people impacted by cancer while raising the funds needed to make that support possible.

Over the years, we have evolved in response to the needs of our communities, expanding our services to include information and support services, Quebec's largest accommodation network (300 beds), complementary therapies, psychological support, financial and legal assistance, and much more. We listened. Then we acted.

Today, our strategic shift is strengthening our ability to further innovate in oncology, expand our prevention efforts, and improve access to services in more communities across Quebec. The needs aren't slowing down. Neither are we.

Every donation help us expand our reach so we can support more people, earlier and more equitably.

Board of Directors

(as at December 31, 2025)

In 2025, the Board of Directors welcomed several new members of different ages and origins, representing a wide range of experiences and skills to the Foundation.

Our former Board Vice-Chair Geneviève Giguère was named Chair of the Board in 2025. A reputed leader in the consulting and pharmaceutical sectors, she holds the position of Partner, Life Sciences & Health Care at Deloitte.

Marilyne Vallières also joined the Board as a Director. CPA and Co-founder of Signalisation de Ville, she is a prominent figure in the province's business community and an active member of the Conseil du patronat du Québec.

Formerly an observer member, Isabelle Girard joined the Board as a Director this year. Educated as a nurse and a manager for over 25 years, she is now the President and CEO of First Line in Health, the largest primary care convention in the country.

Pierre Bélanger, in turn, joined the Board as a new Director. He has held key roles throughout his career, particularly as a portfolio manager and strategist for major organizations, among them as Vice-president of the Fonds de solidarité (FTQ) investment portfolio.

And lastly, Roxanne Simon, a clinical nurse for over 17 years, also recently joined the Board as a Director. Alongside her clinical practice, she is an entrepreneur focused on digital innovation in the health sector and how to improve the patient experience.

Comprised of 17 members, the Board of Directors continues to stand out as a result of its unwavering commitment to gender equity, representativeness and inclusion, as well as its dedication to better meeting the needs of Quebecers with cancer.

Building a healthier future

The Quebec Cancer Foundation has been supporting people who urgently need help since 1979. Year after year, we provide tangible services adapted to the needs of people facing cancer throughout Quebec, by acting earlier, driving greater impact and touching more people directly.

Over the past two years, we have expanded our mission by taking on a pivotal, unifying and decisive role in cancer prevention, screening measures and patient advocacy. This shift has become an essential element in the battle against cancer and our efforts to build a healthier future for everyone. We will continue to embrace this new role with determination and resolve.

Your support allows us to magnify the impact of our actions, year after year.

Together, let's keep driving change.
Each donation counts.

Foundation

Thanks to you, we are now acting earlier, driving greater impact and reaching more people directly.

Your donations, time, energy and trust are the reason why thousands of people obtain support when they need it the most. They are heard, accompanied, housed, kept informed and supported at every step of their cancer journey. Your commitment allows us to act earlier. To increase awareness. To inform. To rally.

Because building a healthier future is not only about helping people with cancer. It also calls for efforts aimed at increasingly preventing cancer.

For more than 45 years, the Quebec Cancer Foundation has been taking action to ensure that no one needs to face cancer on their own. Together, we can take steps to make a lasting impact that will be felt by people today and for years to come.

Let's build a healthier future for everyone, together.
